[Cookbooks] Ladies Society of the M.E. Church of Marion, Kansas. Acme Cook Book. Newton, Kans.: J. G. Rogers, Printer and Binder, [circa 1895?]. 112pp.

Our earliest imprint from Marion (and Newton, also, for that matter). No other copy is known. "J.R. Rogers and Son" published the Kansas Commoner, a weekly, in Newton, 1887-1912. We presume that J.G. Rogers is the "son" in the firm. Chock-full of ads for local businesses, none of which mention electricity, telephones, or automobiles.

[Cookbooks] Los Angeles Times Cook Book No. 2; One Thousand Toothsome Cooking and Other Recipes Including Seventy Nine Old Time California, Spanish and Mexican Dishes Recipes of Famous Pioneer Spanish Settlers. Los Angeles: The Times Mirror Company, [1908].

Imprint date supplied by Gloser, California in the Kitchen. A notable early collection with ethnic cuisine featured prominently.

[N.p.]: National Council of Negro Women, Inc., ©1958. [First edition, first printing] [10], 144, [6] p. Cover: "Sculptured Heads" by Meta Warrick Fuller; pen drawings by [triangular device] The Corporate Press.

[Cookbooks] Tried and Tested Recipes. Wayne, Neb.: contributed by members and friends of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1926.

[Cookbooks] [Utah] Recipes. Compiled by the Ladies of St. Mark's Guild, 1886. Revised 1909. Salt Lake City, Utah: Ackerman & Co., Printers, 1909. 207,[1] p., including a few blank pages in each chapter for personal notes. Most recipes are signed.

Cook, p. 250, cites the 1886 edition of this title as the first charity cookbook in Utah but notes that no copy could be located. The 1909 revised edition is the fourth charity cookbook listed by Cook. All early Utah cookery books are quite scarce.

[Cookbooks] [Utah] Utah Cook Book. Compiled by the Ladies of the First Presbyterian Church. Salt Lake City, Utah: Press of Tribune Job Printing Company, 1904. [first edition] [1-5], 6-139, [5] p., 1 plate of ads.

This is one of the earliest cookery books published in Utah. It is not found in Cook and precedes the second title listed by Cook (PRACTICAL HIGH ALTITUDE COOK BOOK, 1905). Not in other standard culinary bibliographies. Only two library holdings located. The recipes are signed. Provides a good picture of local businesses in the many advertisements throughout: several full-page ads and over 50 two-inch ads at bottom of pages. At head of title: You cannot cook in Utah as you did in the East. From title page: "Every recipe in this book has been tried by the lady whose name follows it. If you fail to get good results it is your fault and not the fault of the directions within." Committee chair and committee membership listed on title page.

“By a pioneer who came to the Dubuque lead mines in 1827.” Howes. “Langworthy was personally identified with most of the events he narrates and his relation of the incidents and conditions of the frontier settlement from 1830 to 1850 is one of the classics among pioneer annals.” Eberstadt. Langworthy, who evidently gave the name ‘Iowa’ to the Territory, was the first sheriff of Dubuque. He led an expedition to take from the Indians the mines of Spain at Dubuque, but Major Stephen W. Kearney thwarted the attempt.

“A rare history of the first white settlement on the western bank of the Upper Mississippi.

[Jewish history] [Voorsanger, Jacob] The Chronicles of Emanu-El: Being an account of the rise and progress of the Congregation Emanu-el which was founded in July, 1850 and will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary December 23, 1900. San Francisco: [Geo. Spaulding & Co.]. 1900. Quarto, dark cloth, recessed front cover panel, gilt-illustrated front cover and gilt-lettered spine. Frontis of the Sutter Street Synagogue. 169, [8], iv-xxi, [1 blank], plus plates [including photo illustrations]. Voorsanger dedicates the book to Raphael Peixotto, President of the Congregation. It meticulously traces the history of the Congregation-- and also of much of San Francisco Jewry-- from 1849 until 1900, and includes stories of their immigration, early religious institutions, encounters with anti-Semitism and Sunday observance laws. "The time had come to give religion permanent security in their new home. The covenant of Israel was to be reaffirmed on the edge of the continent." Adaptations to western life, the Congregation's swing to Reform Judaism, and its significant members, rabbis, and personalities are described. Not in Rocq.

Full Report of the Ceremonies, Processions, Illumination, and the Speeches of Ex-Governors Ramsey and Gorman.* Saint Paul, Minn.: Daily Minnesotian Print, 1858. 22, [2 blanks] pp.

The “great day” celebrated “the greatest achievement of science, skill and energy, accomplished by man in this or any other age.” Speeches, ceremonies, and an elaborate parade marked the occasion, commemorating the Atlantic Cable and man’s remarkable progress in the useful arts, all reported here. Ex-Governors Ramsey and Gorman speak on man’s astounding progress and its implications. The speech of Samuel Ludvigh, Editor of the Staats Zeitung, is printed in German, Fraktur type, and is presumably to the same effect. “The successful working lasted only a few hours on this occasion.”

[Minnesota] Storey, W. D.: A View of St. Anthony Falls, Present and Prospective: Being a Report of the Manufacturing, Commercial, and General Advantages of Saint Anthony Falls, Minnesota. Minneapolis, Minn.: Atlas Steam Printing House. 1867.

A scarce promotional for this town, with advertisements on the inner wrappers and the last three text pages. Storey, as the rear wrappers advises, was a lawyer practicing “in all State or United States Courts,” including collection work in Saint Anthony and Minneapolis. Mining technology, the improvement of the Mississippi River, “and the rapidly maturing project of a Northern Pacific Railroad” will “beckon us onward to the position of one of the first cities in the Valley of the Mississippi.” This pamphlet also emphasizes the availability and uses of the city’s water power, the trade and agriculture of the area, and the “six distinct and important land grant railroads already in process of construction [that] virtually terminate at, and are tributary to the Falls of St. Anthony.”

L. U. Reavis, the indefatigable Missouri booster, was a member of the Capital Committee, the alleged mouthpiece for the "sentiment of the majority of the people of this Government, that Washington City is no longer the appropriate place for the national Capital," Washington D. C. is longer "near the center of wealth and population and extent of Territory," thanks to the development of the country west of the Alleghenies and, especially, the Mississippi Valley and Trans-Mississippi West. Hence, the original reasons for establishing Washington as the Nation's Capital no longer apply. There can be little doubt that Reavis and his colleagues have their eye on Missouri as the ideal location.

[Poetry] Dyer, John. The Fleece, a Poem. London: Printed for R. & J. Dodsley, 1757.

Published the year before he died, this is the poet's best-known and longest poem. Amazingly, Dyer manages to work into his verse an endless parade of allusions to ancient Greece, Rome, and Egypt, Africa, South America, Russia, the orient, and the American colonies. Samuel Johnson famously remarked that the subject could not be "poetical," but later critics have seen it as a fine tribute to agricultural labor. Dobell 472. Rothschild 830. NCBEL II:546. Found among our uncatalogued materials and so we are unsure how it came to be in our possession. Nonetheless, a splendid discovery. E. L. DeGolyer Jr. was passionate in his pursuit of travel literature, but he rarely ventured into the realm of verse. In original boards, with paper spine label, and publisher's catalogue.

[Political economy] [Bimetallism] Plain Talk About Free Silver. [Chicago? 1870s?] 12pp. Original printed wrappers [light dusting], with a cartoon sketch of two men [Altgeld and Hinrichsen], their heads in their books [entitled 'Coin's Financial School'] leading the Democratic donkey and themselves over a cliff.

The cartoon cover was originally published in the Chicago Tribune. In the form of a dialogue in Topeka Kansas, between a farmer and one Barlow, who was "working in the Santa Fe shops," the pamphlet demolishes the free silver arguments of the farmer, who claims to speak for all Westerners. Free coinage of silver, he says, will "smash those Eastern gold bugs, who are sucking our life-blood." Those Easterners, Barlow reminds him, built the Santa Fe Railroad, and they are still losing money on that project. Moreover, he says, an increase in the money supply via silver coinage will proportionally increase prices.
