Chris Jordan

Exclusively Represented by Washington Speakers Bureau

Chris Jordan is an internationally acclaimed photographic artist and activist whose work explores the detritus of American mass culture. His newest series, titled Running the Numbers, depicts the staggering statistics that define contemporary America, in huge intricately detailed panels as large as thirty feet wide. These huge works invite the viewer to walk up close and see every detail as a metaphor for the role of the individual in our hypermodern society.

Chris's work is exhibited widely in the US and Europe, and has been featured in magazines, newspapers, weblogs, documentary films and television programs all over the globe. A sought-after speaker on the subject of mass culture,

Chris also has appeared on several national television programs recently. Currently Chris is spokesperson for National Geographic's Earth Day 2008.

He lives in Seattle with his wife the poet, Victoria Sloan Jordan, and his son Emerson.
